“Investing In Your Future!”

The age-old biblical principle remains true, “Whatever a man sows, that shall he also reap.” We determine much about our future by choosing where we invest our time, our effort, our attention, and our money now. Investing is putting something in now, with hopes of gaining a positive return later. Are you purposefully investing in your future in both this life and the next?

For some, the future looks long and uncertain. They look forward to college, marriage, career, family and whatever life brings. For some, they think of the future in terms of their children's successful navigation of college and career and the finding of a marriage partner. Others see the future in terms of securing their retirement years. Still others think of how they will spend the next few months or years before they die. Whatever stage of life one may be in, one must invest in the future.

One of the greatest ways to invest in one's future is education. Effort, money, time, and attention spent on education opens up a world of possibilities for the future. The knowledge, skills, and perspectives gained through education will shape the way one deals with the world and will open many doors. Education, not only for this life, but for eternity, is vital. How many of us invest at great length in secular education, but not in the education that will serve us well in this life and the life to come. Those who invest heavily in the study of God's word will reap rewards now and forever.

Christians must also invest heavily in their career. Part of being a Christian is working for a living and being financially sufficient. Two thousand plus hours each year of our lives will be spent working for a living. We will spend much of our time in this world in a work setting, serving both God and man. Because this is true, we must invest in a career that will be honorable, satisfying, supportive of our financial needs, and provide an environment in which we can be an influence for Christ. Christians invest in their careers in a way that honors both God and man because much of their service to God and man will be rendered in the context of their career.

Christians must invest their finances wisely. Jesus said a man's heart is wherever his treasure is. God calls Christians to minimize debt, to work toward financial self-sufficiency, to work to support their families, and to care for their parents in their old age. All of this takes financial discipline and planning. God calls Christians to invest financially in the Lord's work throughout life, thereby laying up treasures in the bank of heaven to last for eternity.

The Broadway church exists to glorify God, to reflect the character and teachings of Christ, to carry out the Great Commission, and do all in the unity of the Holy Spirit.

Christians must invest heavily in their family. This area often gets neglected, with disastrous results. Godly marriages and families require great investments of time, attention, effort, and money. Marriage and family are areas in which we should sow our greatest efforts and by doing so, reap some of our greatest rewards. Remember, we reap what we sow.

We are all sowing now for the future we will reap later. How and where are you investing your time, your attention, your energy, your efforts, and your money today? Let us make sure that we are investing in our education, our career, our family, and investing our finances in a way that will serve us well not only in this brief life, but in the ages of eternity thereafter!

harvest update

Broadway has been rejoicing over and over this year. Our young people have been submitting to the Lordship of Jesus and obeying the gospel. Last Sunday, Jennifer Taylor was baptized into Christ by her father, Scott Taylor. May the good news about Jesus Christ and reconciliation to God through him continue to be proclaimed by this church, inside and outside of these walls and throughout the earth. This has been a great year as the Lord continues to add to our number.
